CONTENTS

Editor’s Message: Battleship
Dr Alix Valenti

Letters

Letter from the US
Otto Kreisher

Letter from the Philippines
Noel “Weng” Tarrazona

Technology Spotlight

Magnetic Attraction – Understanding Degaussing
Dr Alix Valenti

Bridging People – New Radar Software to Boost Integrated Bridges
Dr Thomas Lehmann

Features

Surface & Sub-Surface: Multi-Mission Ships: Capabilities and Trade-Offs
Steven W. Miller

Naval Aviation: Asian Helicopter Fleets
Alan Warnes

Electronic Warfare: Electronic Warfare 101: The Fundamentals of Naval Electronic Warfare
Dr Thomas Withington

Measures & Counter-Measures: Fast Track: Smart Ammunition Finds Its Place On-board
Massimo Annati

Measures & Counter-Measures: Naval Radars – Beam On! Naval Surveillance Radars Forging Ahead
Dr Thomas Withington

Special Operations: Surface Insertion
Andrew White

Military Doctrine & Strategy: Sea Basing
Steven W. Miller

60 Seconds...: Doing Business with the US
Marty Kauchack

Regional Focus

High North: Unmanned Arctic
Dr Alix Valenti

Europe: To Each Their Own – European Navies Postures
Marco Giuilio Barone

Asia: Rising Sun – Japan’s Navy Modernisation & Challenges
Robert Czulda

Asia: ASEAN On the Rise – ASEAN Rising Powers
Robert Czulda

Profile

National Chung-Shan Institute of Science and Technology: Do It Yourself
Edward Lundquist

Brazil’s PHM Atlantico: Projecting Power
Santiago Rivas and Felipe Salles

Interview

Royal Canadian Navy: Rear-Admiral Bob Auchterlonie
Commander of Maritime Forces Pacific
Dr Joetey Attariwala

Dossier

Impressum / Index of Advertisers
From Industry & Innovators

---

Naval helicopters are real force multipliers. There is an increased requirement to maximise their utility in terms of mission profile, from anti-submarine warfare and anti-surface warfare through to mine detection and littoral support. The new generation of naval helicopters, be they either medium-size or large types like the UK Royal Navy’s Merlin, is operated from a vast variety of surface ships. (Photo: MoD/Crown Copyright)